Memories & Moments

Images capture the essential character of an event and shared emotions.

A Slice of Divinity

Photographing sacred places and objects is amazingly emotional. It allows you to connect with the place or object and help put the character of it's reverence on display without the overwhelming feeling of being surrounded by and in it's beauty and physical presence making it difficult to take in the splendour.

San Antonio, TX, 2012

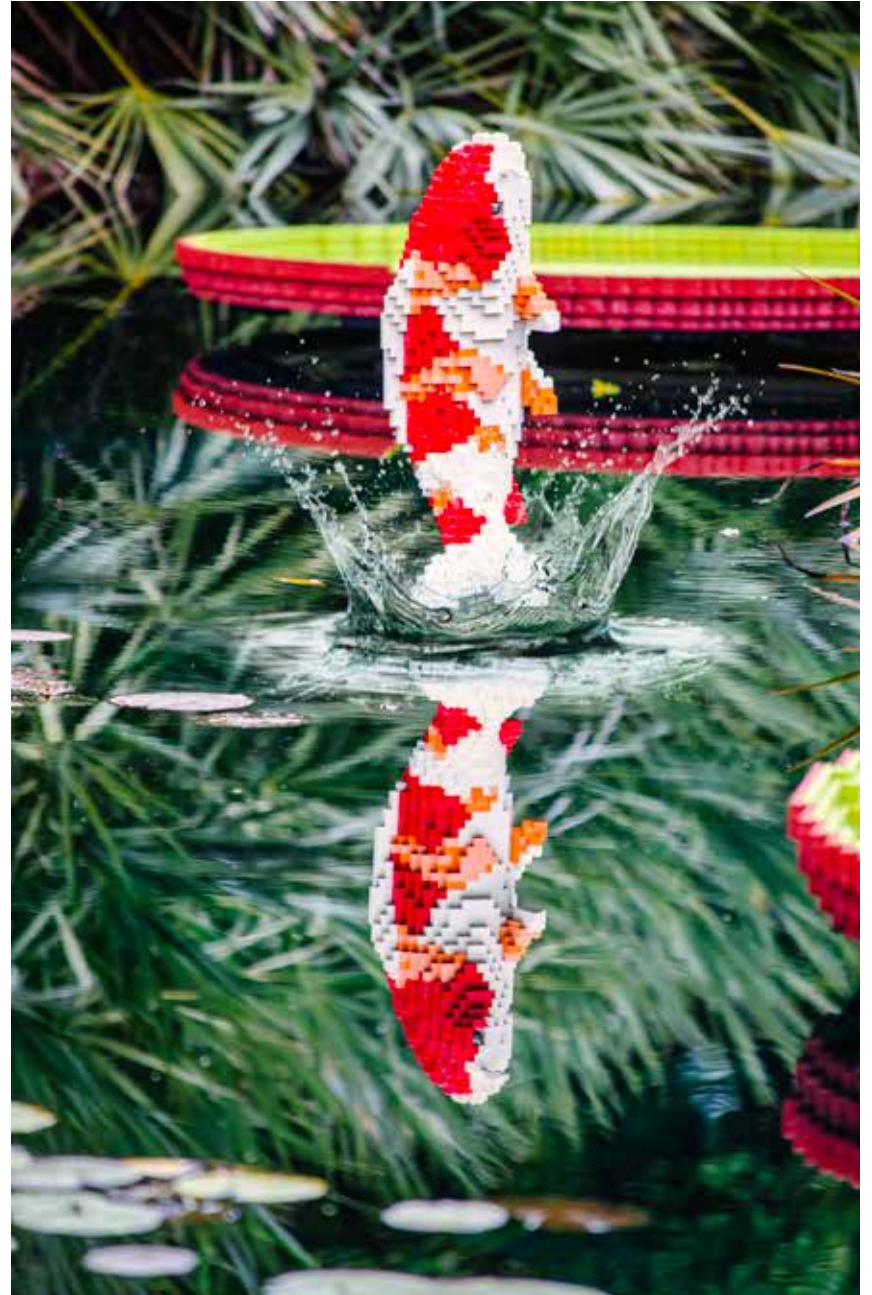

Image Compositing

All my photographic compositions are authentic but not all the elements in them are real.

2023

It's a wondrous thing how effective plant life and nature are in expressing human emotion. Some scenes seem sombre and others are bustling with vitality.

Textures and Colors

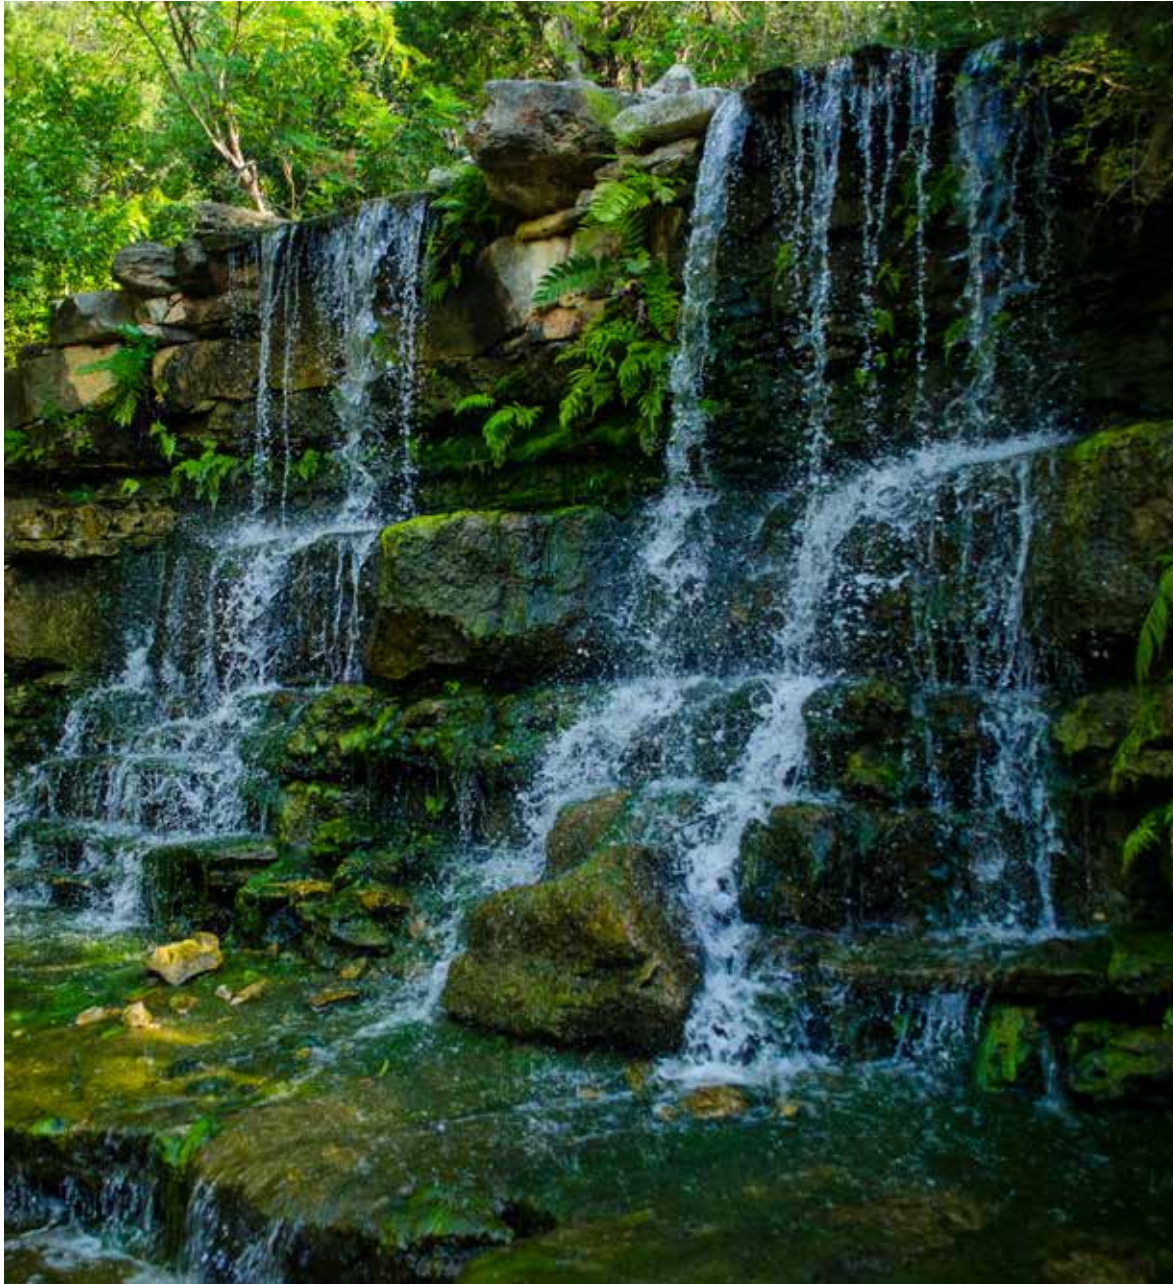

Capturing images you can feel with your eyes, images that are indicative of a feeling when you touch them are the most sumptuous to me.

The Scouts of the Heart

There's a saying that I enjoy which is about love, "...the eyes are the scouts of the heart, And the eyes go reconnoitering for what it would please the heart to possess." The same can be said for photography. As a photographer your eyes go searching for what might provide a beautiful composition and stir an emotion in the heart.

A Gift From The Universe

When a I see a scene, probaby any photographer sees a scene, and the oppotunity of a photo presents itself to the eye of the photographer, it's like a gift has been given.

San Antonio Tx, King Williams District, 2021

Art Where Art Happens

I love attending local art events and frequent the local museums in San Antonio. I enjoy and find inspiration in exposing myself to contemporary art. I have to admit I often find myself envious of the raw creativity I find.

Derelict Scenes

There's some bizarre beauty in street scenes that calls out to the eye. Sometimes it's the dynamic quality of the angles and other times it's the expansiveness of the scene. In the derelict I find a neglected homeliness coupled with an officious structure like the building is the thing it was character has been painted all over it.

San Antonio, TX, 2009

Beautiful is Old

We often associate beauty with youthfulness. The most compelling images are often things that have aged and tattooed with the passage of time. You can look at an image and know people have worked and walked this passage before me.

Full Spectrum

I want to photograph sorrow and happiness. When you pick up a camera people have the tendency to smile, even if they're not in an especially good mood. But as a photographer you want to capture the full range of human emotion, pensive moments are very impactful visially and emotionally.

Humanity & Impact

It's a gift to every photographer that they're made a part of important and impactful moments in people lives. People will often contact you and express the pricelessness of the portrait you took after a decade has passed.
