HALEY MILLS

BIO

Bedroom producer, singer, and live performer

Hailing from San Antonio, Texas, I am a multi-faceted musician known for my emotive exploration of grief, addiction/sobriety, identity, depression, and loss. I began writing music in 2007 under a different name, and went “viral” on MySpace before it was a part of our everyday vocabulary.

With experience performing at both large events and intimate punk houses, my music combines production prowess, haunting vocals, and captivating performances.

Embracing the DIY ethos, I actively collaborate with local artists, creating a synergy that enhances both our art and the community we represent. I create and record the music on my own, but during live performances I am joined onstage by Austin Valentine and Jorge Gonzalez—two established, professional musicians.

Join me on a journey that embodies authenticity, resilience, and the power of artistic camaraderie.
